

ATTORNEYS ARE TAKING DEPOSITIONS

In Suit of John Pierce
Against the Government.

Today attorneys for John Pierce of New York began taking depositions at the navy yard in the suit brought by Pierce against the government for loss sustained in the construction of the stone dry dock at the navy yard. Attorney King of New York is representing the builders while P. M. Ashford from the attorney general's office will look after the government's interests. Timothy Sullivan of Concord, a former inspector of granite who had charge for the government during the building of the dock, is the principal witness in this important case and will be in attendance during the hearing, which is expected to last three or four days.

MR. LANGDON MAKES GIFT FOR PLAYGROUND.

Sum to Be Expended for Two Tennis Courts.

Hon. Woodbury Langdon on Saturday sent the Board of Public Works a check for $500, to be used on the tennis courts and for the lighting system recently installed in the playhouse. This is only a small part of what he has done for the city toward the playgrounds, in which he takes so much interest and which was made possible by his kindness.

LAKE CLAIMS TWO VICTIMS

Harry Cobb and Hyman Harris Are Thrown Into the Water by Overturning of Boat.

AMHERST, July 29.—Henry Cobb, aged 70 years, and Hyman Harris, aged 30, were drowned yesterday through the capsizing of a row boat in Lake Winnepesaukee about 400 feet off Pitchwood Island, and four miles from here. Cobb for the past four years had lived with George Wheeler, the proprietor of the Pitchwood Island hotel. Harris was a travelling salesman who had come to the island to spend the week end. Cobb and Harris, together with Daniel D. Berry, of Fitchburg, Mass., had gone out fishing and about five o'clock the two men who were drowned stood up in the boat to pull up the anchor. This act resulted in overbalancing the boat and the three men were thrown into the water. Harris never came up again, while Cobb reached the surface once.

MAIL WILL BE WEIGHED.

Beginning August 5 the Portsmouth postoffice, as well as the railway postal service, will begin the quadrennial ceremony of weighing the mail and continue for a period of 105 days. This is done in order to determine the price to be paid to the railroads and upon the results of this operation will depend the contracts with the roads for the next four years. This makes a lot of extra work for the postal employees.

JOINT OUTING

Amesbury and Local Firemen to Meet at Salisbury Beach. A joint outing of the members of Protection Veteran Firemen's Association of Amesbury and the members of the Franklin Pierce Veteran Firemen's Association of this city will be held at Salisbury Beach next Saturday. It is safe to say that there will be something doing every minute and that the local boys will not have to be told to get busy.

JUDGE LOCKE HAS TENDERED HIS RESIGNATION

Oldest Judge on the Bench
in Point of Service.

Judge James W. Locke of Jacksonville, Fla., and a former resident of Kittery, has tendered President Taft his resignation as judge of the United States District Court, Southern district of Florida. Judge Locke is one of the oldest men on the bench in point of service, having been appointed Feb. 1, 1872, and is said to be the only man in the country who now holds a commission signed by President Grant. Judge Locke served during the Civil War as a paymaster in the navy. Following the Spanish-American war he won much distinction in the settlement of many important claims. Although located in the South he has passed a greater part of the summer season for many years at Kittery, where he was married. Judge Locke is a native of Manchester, N. H., and is 75 years of age.

IT'S AN EYESORE AND SHOULD BE CLEANED UP.

Ever since the night of July 3 the remains of the lumber on the playgrounds has been an eyesore to the people who take pleasure in visiting the grounds. The public works department says that the man who had charge of the fire agreed to clear up the remains. He probably thinks it was up to the public works to do the cleaning and there you are. Whoever it is to blame, it has been there long enough and the public will be pleased when somebody gets busy with that lot of mired wood.

FRIGHTENED YOUNG PEOPLE

Colored Auto Party Were on a Joy Ride

An automobile party consisting of five colored men were conveyed to the Newburyport police station early Sunday morning charged with frightening a party of young people of both sexes who were about the streets at 2:30 o'clock evidently "joy riding." The young people were scared and plainly told the officers so and uncolored residents were warned to proceed on their trip to this city after a little interview at the police station. Later in the day an automobile dealer of this city was in Newburyport and stated that the five men had engaged one of his autos for a two hours' trip and had failed to come back at the time appointed. By this time, however, the birds had flown but whether homeward or not is not known.

HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

Hotel Prescott, which for some months past has been conducted by A. R. Reed, was on Saturday sold to its former owner, Mr. A. D. Wentworth. It is understood that Mr. Wentworth will take possession of the house on August 3rd.

OLD HOME WEEK PLANS

Eliot to Hold Elaborate Celebration and Mark Many Historic Spots.

Great preparations are being made by the residents of Eliot for Old Home week which is to be held from August 19 to 17, inclusive. Following the ideas of her late husband, Ex-Governor John F. Hill, a native of Eliot, Mrs. Hill has offered to give to the town six bronze tablets to mark the historical spots. The committee in charge of the Old Home Week celebration has voted to place a bronze tablet at the Hill homestead in memory of the ex-Governor. The Hill homestead was built in 1696 by Samuel Hill who came there from Oyster River, Dover, after the Indian troubles. It is still retained in the family being occupied by Mrs. Hobbs, a sister of the ex-Governor. Ex-Governor Cobb of Bath has been invited to deliver a memorial address at the unveiling of the Hill tablet. Other tablets will be unveiled marking the home of Noah Emery, the first king's counsel in Maine, home of William Fogg the historian of Kittery and Eliot, also the birthplace of Dr. John H. Fogg the donor of the Fogg memorial library and Prof. Moses G. Farmer the inventor of the fire alarm and discoverer of the self exciting power of the dynamo, site of the old Hanscom shipyard where the Nightingale, Elizabeth Hamilton, and other noted ships were built, site of the first church in Eliot, known as the church in the woods, built in 1699, site of the old earth fort built in 1812 and guns mounted in anticipation of an attack by the British, burial place of Samuel Hill in the old burying ground, home of Alexander Shapleigh, the first settler in Kittery, his house being named the "Kittery House" after Kittery in England. The program is as follows: Monday, August 12.—Afternoon, unveiling of tablets; evening reception by John F. Hill Grange at Grange Hall. Tuesday, afternoon and evening—reception and banquet of former Eliot Academy students. Wednesday—Afternoon, Eliot day, with addresses by Ex-Governor Frank W. Rollins, of New Hampshire, Rev. Dr. Walter L. Crafts of Washington, Melville L. Hanscom, of Philadelphia, and others; collation with band concert in the evening. Thursday—Morning parade of automobiles and town teams under Chief Marshall, George F. Howe. In the afternoon and evening John F. Hill Grange will entertain. Friday—Afternoon and evening reunion of the students of Eliot High School. Saturday—Devoted to athletic sports, including a game of baseball between the married and single men. While the incorporation of the town of Eliot did not take place until 1810, its history begins with that of Piscataqua Plantation settled in 1623 from which Kittery and the Berwick were formed. In 1810 the North parish was incorporated as a separate town under the name of Eliot and was the only town in the district of Maine incorporated that year. There was much

BEACH, THE BUTLER BURGLAR HAS A RECORD

Noted Thief Is Wanted in New York as Well as
New Hampshire.

Edgar R. Beach who is known to the police of England and America and who is held by the police of Philadelphia awaiting the granting of requisition papers for his removal to New Hampshire on a charge of stealing $15,000 from the residence of Mrs. George M. Studebaker at Rye Beach, is also wanted for a similar robbery in New York City. Beach was arrested in Philadelphia as he was boarding a steamer bound for Europe, and the larger part of the valuables stolen from the Studebaker residence was recovered. While he has been in the custody of the police there, Beach has been identified by Dr. J. E. L. Davis of New York City, as the man hired by him as a butler on apparently unimpeachable recommendations on the 17th of January, last. The man at that time gave the name of George Munroe. He remained at the Davis residence about 24 hours and when he left he took with him jewelry belonging to Mrs. Davis valued at $5000. After this job Beach went back to England, and on his return in June secured employment as a butler at the Studebaker home with results stated above. It is also charged that in 1907, Beach despoiled a Philadelphia physician of $2,500 in cash and jewelry. When Beach was arrested as he went aboard the steamer, there were found in his trunk a valuable collection of jewelry including a necklace containing 85 pearls, and $4,000 in cash.

Washington, July 29.—The wonderful base running and fielding of Clyde Milan, Washington's star outfielder, is the talk of the American league circuit this season. Probably no other gardner in the junior baseball association has made as many brilliant catches as Milan has this season. It may also be stated that he is the most accurate judge of a fly ball in the game today. Milan is also after Ty Cobb's base running record. At present he is leading the base purloiners with forty-five thefts to his credit. Clyde has been doing some good work with his stick and has a batting average of .296.

WANTS PRESIDENT AT PARTIES

Mrs. Taft Does Not Like to Entertain When Her Husband is Away.

The White House was unusually quiet during the month of May because the president was away. Mrs. Taft does not like to entertain largely when the president is away. The first lady of the land seems to make it a point that the president shall be at home when large functions are given at the White House. While the president is away Mrs. Taft contents herself with long walks and with small tea parties in the afternoon. Two large garden parties were canceled because the president had to be away.

Indeed, Mrs. Taft is quite insistent that the president shall be present at her garden parties. Two years ago the president had made arrangements to visit Indianapolis, but it chanced that this date was the same as the first of Mrs. Taft's garden parties and the president cared to yield to the wishes of his wife, and the Indianapolis party trip was canceled to the great dismay of quite a number of politicians in that state, and they hurried down to Washington in numbers to learn what was the matter, not being able to credit that a mere garden party had interfered with the visit. But they learned it was a fact, and themselves yielded to Mrs. Taft's wishes afterward, although a whole year lapsed, entertaining the president in Indianapolis.

District Population.

It is estimated by Maj. Richard Sylvester, superintendent of police, that the total population of the District of Columbia will be shown by the police census to be approximately 355,000. The enumeration has been completed in all of the precincts and the results are now being compiled.

The last police census, taken in 1909, showed the population of the District to be approximately 343,000. It is believed that during the three years the population has increased by 12,000.

STATE GOLF CHAMPION TO BE AT RYE BEACH

Annual Meeting of New Hampshire Golf Association Held--Big Entry Expected for Abenaki.

At an adjourned meeting of the New Hampshire Golf Association held in this city, delegates were present from Concord, Manchester, Exeter, Rochester and the Country Club of this city.

The following officers were re-elected: President, A. F. Cooper, Exeter; vice president, R. D. McDonough, Portsmouth; secretary and treasurer, George A. Place, Concord.

An invitation was received and accepted from the Abenaki Golf Club of Rye Beach to hold the annual state championship on their course, Friday and Saturday, September 6th and 7th. The play to consist of an eighteen-hole qualifying round medal play, the first eight to qualify for the championship medal and Rollins cup, the second eight to qualify for the President cup and the third eight for the Abenaki cup.

The team championship for the hand-some Craft cup will be eighteen holes medal play. Teams to consist of four men. This cup has been won for the past two years by the Portsmouth Country Club team.

The Abenaki Golf club is one of the best eighteen hole courses in the state and it is expected that the entry this year will be especially large.

The headquarters will be the Farragut Hotel and special rates are given the players.

AN INSPIRATION TO NEW ENGLAND GIRLS.

An inspiration to all New England girls says the Boston Sunday Globe is Miss Margaret V. Kelly, Native of Portsmouth, N. H., and a product of Boston educational institutions, she has demonstrated for their benefit that good, hard work will eventually bring advancement in the great civil service legion which keeps in motion the intricate and ponderous machinery of the Federal Government.

She draws $3000 a year salary as Assistant Director of the United States Mint.

Fifteen years ago, fresh from the Boston Schools, Miss Kelly tackled a civil-service examination. She passed, and 14 years ago entered the service of the Mint Bureau as a stenographer. Since that time she has been successfully private secretary to the director, adjutant of accounts, examiner, assistant director, and now when the director is absent from Washington, she signs herself "acting director."

To see her some day acting Secretary of the Treasury of the United States entails no stretch of the imagination, for, if the secretary and the two assistant secretaries, the Controller of the Currency and the Treasurer of the United States were to absent themselves at the same time and Miss Kelly were then acting director of the mint, it would be Margaret V. Kelly, acting secretary, "Treasury Department."

Officials of the department are scarce in Washington during the summer months. Those who are not big enough, like Cabinet officers, to go off bravely on a two or three months' vacation, make official inspection trips, and it is not infrequent that the director of the Mint is acting secretary of the department.

The present director never had--and in fact, no other director of the Mint has ever had--an assistant until President Taft appointed Miss Kelly to that post. Now the director can take as many official trips as may be necessary, for there is much inspection work to be done. Under him are three coinage mints and nine other minor mints where billion is bought but no money coined.

While there are 1400 employees in the Mint service and the responsibilities of the management are great, Miss Kelly has several times held her own as acting director. She is an expert, knowing every detail of the manufacture of the pennies, nickels and silver and gold coins that are turned out to the value of millions of dollars annually.

Miss Kelly, by the way, when she was appointed by President Taft, and thus became a unique figure in the Government service, she refused to give any personal information about herself and forbade her friends to talk about her. She announced then that she had no photographs of herself, and she successfully dodged all efforts to snapshot her until quite recently.

The picture here printed shows her leaving the Union Station, Washington, after having returned from a business trip out of town.

"The Government 'Blue Book' does not give the ages of federal employees. The Civil Service Commission has Miss Kelly's age on record, but it is sacred there. And Miss Kelly, as is woman's inalienable privilege, refuses to speak upon the subject.

EXETER LETTER

This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the camp meetings at Hedding. Among the Pines, and the meetings, which will begin on Aug. 26 and end on Aug. 31, will be arranged approximately for the semi-centennial observance. They are probably the oldest religious festival of the kind in this section, having their origin at what is now Rockingham Junction. Only for a few years were they held there before they were removed to East Epping, which is now Hedding, named after Bishop Hedding. They will be in charge of Rev. Raymond H. Huse of Dover, district superintendent of the Dover district of the New Hampshire Methodist Episcopal conference. A semi-centennial hymn will be sung, and on Saturday morning of the closing day will be the date of holding the remembrances. The camp meeting program is one of the most attractive of recent years. Workers from far and near will assemble, and some of the ablest preachers in the denomination will be heard. The forenoon of each day will be devoted to Bible study and church institute. The people will have an opportunity to hear Dr. Charles F. Sitterly of Drew Theological Institute of Madison, N. J. The church institute will be addressed by D. I. McKay of Roxbury, Mass., widely known as "the prisoners' friend," Madam Barakat of Syria, national evangelist of the W. C. T. U., whose remarkable life story so thrilled the audiences at Hedding last year; and by Dr. W. P. Stewart of Boston, the noted camp meeting evangelist and Chautauque lecturer. The afternoon and evening services will be largely evangelistic in character. The Rev. Felix Powell, the "Italian volcano," will have charge of the Pentecostal services. P. E. Call of the Dover street mission will be present and assist in the services. Other preachers of prominence will be Rev. Rollin S. Tuttle of California, Rev. Eldred May, Rev. Joseph Simpson, Rev. J. R. Dinmore and Rev. E. S. Tasker of the New Hampshire conference, and Rev. T. E. Cramer, district superintendent of the Concord district, and others. The daily prayer meetings will be held in charge of Rev. H. P. Quimby of Exeter, Rev. H. E. Allen of Lawrence, Mass., Rev. J. D. Leach of Hampstead and others. The music will be a special feature. Wilbur A. Littlefield of Exeter and Rev. J. K. Craig of Milford will have charge. Cornet, clarinet, violin and organ will accompany the singing, and attractive gospel singing will be heard. It is expected that the representation from southern New Hampshire and the adjacent Manchester district will be large there this year.

One of the remarkable old ladies of Exeter is Mrs. Mary J. Dearborn of Pleasant street, who last month reached the four-score year mark in life. She was born in Candia June 10, 1832, and has lived in Exeter since her youthful days, a remarkable feature of the fact being that she has resided in the same house for a period of fifty-four years. She is the daughter of John and Abigail (Clifford) Robinson, and was married to Edwin Dearborn of Exeter on Jan. 16, 1851 at Hampton Falls by the Rev. Sereno T. Abbott, pastor of the Line church of that town from 1837 to 1854. Mr. Abbott is also an interesting Exeter person, as he was a brother-in-law to the late Sperry French, the veteran educator, and father of Arthur S. French, a local business man. Mrs. Dearborn had a remarkable memory of all the dates of important happenings in Exeter are at her command.

She lives in what is one of the oldest sections of the town, and it was directly across the street in one of the brick blocks that Robert Lincoln, son of President Lincoln, boarded when he was a student at Phillips Exeter academy. He was a border thief when he was visited by his father, Mrs. Dearborn (remembers both of the distinguished persons, and also many other persons and events which have transpired in Exeter during the past half century. She retains good health.

Mrs. Dearborn has one child living, Frank Dearborn a local business man being engaged in sea-food business who makes regular trips to the ocean side at all seasons of the year, and it is he who keeps the newspaper man posted on the condition of the marine news during the storms of winter. She lost a daughter a short time ago who had been a cripple for several years.

Mrs. Dearborn was asked for her photograph, but replied that she had not a recent one, the last being taken many years ago, and she added "that does not look like me today."

She promised, however, to have one to be used on her 81st birthday.

The Rev. R. J. Shaw, pastor of the Congregational church of Kensington on Sunday preached his farewell sermon after filling the pastorate there for the last three years.

Mr. Shaw resigned to accept a position at Scarborough, Me. He came to Kensington from Stewardsville. It is not thought that the church will be closed, but will be supplied until a regular pastor can be obtained.

The funeral services of Mrs. Hannah Shinnick Conners, widow of Michael Conners who died at his home on Garfield street Thursday afternoon, was held Sunday morning at St. Michael's church, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. John E. Finen. The body was taken to Lawrence, Mass., for burial.

Fred F. Batchelder, of the firm of Moran & Batchelder reports that his cottage at Hampton Beach was broken into yesterday forenoon in broad daylight, and a diamond ring and gold watch, also a pocket book, the property of his family were stolen. The value in all amounted to about $150. Mrs. Batchelder and family with some company whom they were entertaining went to the surf for bathing and were not away from the cottage more than half an hour.

On their return they found that the window had been pried up with a jimmy, evidently and the property stolen. It was evidently the work of professionals. There is no clue to the burglars.

Six Years to Construct Clock.

A clock constructed throughout of glass is the result of six years' work on the part of a Bavarian glass publisher. The plates and pillars which form the framework are of glass and are bolted together with glass screws. The dial plate, hands, shafts and cogwheels are of glass and glass wedges and pins are used for fastening the various parts of the running gear together, says Tit-Bits. Like the clock itself, the key by which it is wound is of glass. The construction of the remarkable timepiece was a matter of infinite pains. Some of the parts had to be made as many as 40 times before a clock that would go could be produced.

Billions in Exports of Manufactures.

The estimate that a billion dollars worth of manufactures will be exported in the current fiscal year, made by the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, seems likely to be justified. The official figures show for the nine months ending with March $730,000,000 worth of manufactures exported, these figures being $74,000,000 in excess of those for the corresponding period of the preceding year; and as the exports of manufactures in the year ending June 30, 1911, were valued at $907,000,000, the figures at hand seem to clearly indicate that the total for the current year will pass the billion-dollar line.

OUR CANDIDATES:

For President,
WILLIAM H. TAFT
Of Ohio.

For Vice President,
JAMES S. SHERMAN,
of New York.

MONDAY, JULY 29, 1912.

The New York World pays its respects to Mr. Bryan as follows:

"Mr. Bryan is going to commit the unpardonable infamy of trailing Col. Roosevelt around the country during the campaign, and answering his speeches by dealing with the inaccuracies of the only real progressive candidate and touching him up on his tariff record and relations with the trusts, the Nebraska will further the criminal conspiracy of the crooks in business and the crooks in politics who nominated Woodrow Wilson at Baltimore. This act of treason against popular government proves that all his life Mr. Bryan has been the tool of Wall Street and the servant of the corrupt bosses."

The New York Tribune says the action taken by Postmaster General Hitchcock to restrict the use of the general delivery window of the post-offices throughout the country is to be commended. Here and there already a postmaster with shrewd suspicions that Uncle Sam's mail facilities were being abused has undertaken similar reform, and stirred up trouble for himself. This new rule of the department, authorizing the postmasters to require in writing the name and address of any person wishing to use the general delivery window and a statement of his reasons for wishing to do so, will back them up in their endeavors to bar out undesirables.

The Philadelphia Telegraph says a day spent in Fairmount park is not an adequate substitute for a week or two in the country, but if full advantage of the park's facilities for recreation were taken the inconveniences of a long summer in the city might be largely mitigated. In the case of those whose circumstances deny them more extended outings, green meadows and wooded hills cut through by many smaller streams and a large river constitute an invitation within the power of virtually all the city's population to accept. Restrictions placed upon the public's use of the reservation are so few that both children and adults may roam at will in a natural environment thoroughly conducive to physical relaxation and recuperation.

The Chicago Tribune says magistrates who make it costly for men to escort women in our streets and public places will receive the cordial support of the public. It has been a matter of well founded pride among decent Americans that an unescorted woman is safe from insult or annoyance in public if she wishes to be. We will not let this standard of manly honor be lowered by ill conditioned youth or degenerate adults. This continental vice is not for us unless we are falling sadly below our traditional ideals of clean living and respect for women. To admit that there are undisciplined and reckless girls who invite affront is not to admit any excuse for the man who forces his attention upon them or any other woman who does not stoop to take the initiative. Our authorities should be strict in surveillance and punishment. The American standard of conduct toward women is to be jealously guarded.

BIRD'S EYE VIEWS

Some of the interpretations of the democratic platform may tempt Mr. Pluchot to give up national politics as a general proposition and devote his attention exclusively to conservatism.

One method of creating a surplus would be to refuse to sign any vouchers that would take any money out of the treasury. The idea is not inspired by financial experts.

The impulsive judgement of the people is without question to be preferred to the deliberate judgement of a few men, but the sober second thought is the better second thought.

thought of the people themselves is something that cannot be ignored, and must be recognized by all the politicians by whatever name they may call themselves.

Opposition to a gambling palace at Newport is justified. Idle money should find some way of asserting itself without calling in professional talent.

Yuan Shi-Kai seems to be China's only hope. Cabinet ministers and government officials are deserting the ship, and the breach between the North and South is widening. The president alone stands firm and is giving fresh proof of his remarkable capacity.

The New York Herald is willing to wager that Dr. Wiley won't permit his new baby to eat nothing but his fingers and toes. It is to be hoped he will avoid such adulterated English as the Herald furnishes. A pure food baby will undoubtedly be given pure English by his mental paobu lum.

The only word of approval that can be offered for a drought is that it insists in discouraging the man who discourages the man who insists on reminding you that the discomfort arises less from the heat than the humidity.

A candidate is always modest in his ideas about a second term when the immediate question is whether he is to have any at all.

It's hard to work a party platform with such exactness that a good lawyer cannot find a few loopholes after election is over.

For a time the republican elephant was so surrounded by would-be mahouts that he felt like a new arrival encountering the bus driver at a summer resort.

A good patriot and loyal campaigner is obliged to say things that he knows are jeopardizing his reputation as a political prophet.

Sometimes Col. Roosevelt looks like the man who mistook the reverse for the forward clutch.

The reckless driver of an aeroplane is unfortunate in being beyond the restraint of the police.

Plans for an August convention include a defiance of the weather man in the list of protests against current institutions.

Current Topics.

Dangers of Sea Bathing

An explanation of mysterious drownings of men known to be good swimmers may be found in the suggestion of P. A. Surgeon Edward H. H. Old, U. S. N., that the sting of the jellyfish may bring on nausea and weakness that may prevent a strong swimmer from reaching shore or ship. In a paper read at the conference of the medical officers of the U. S. Atlantic fleet at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, several months ago, and now printed in the U. S. Naval Bulletin for July, Dr. Old gave the official records of cases of jellyfish stings, in which great suffering, amounting almost to delirium, had rapidly occurred. Especially he mentioned the instance of a seaman of the U. S. S. North Carolina who had been stung on the arm, chest and neck when swimming at Guantanamo, just off the end of the forward lower boom. He swam immediately to the sea ladder and was so sick he could hardly get up to the forecastle. As soon as he reached the deck he began to vomit and complained of marked weakness, general body pains, nausea and irritation of the breathing tract. He had a severe cough and his eyes were injected and watery. It is easily understandable that if the man had had only a few yards more to swim to reach the sea ladder he might have collapsed and drowned to the great astonishment of his friends who might have sought in vain for the season. The seaman was treated with a hypodermic injection of morphine sulphate and the next day was all right. Other officers on the ships having had similar cases, Dr. Old recommends that the following notice be posted on the bulletin board as a warning to the crew: "As occasionally one is made very sick after being stung by a stinging nettle (jellyfish), any man so stung, if any distance from the ship at the time, shall immediately make for the ship so as to be in reach of assistance. If such should be required." In addition the executive officer gave notice that no man was to swim out beyond the dinghy on duty. Similar symptoms after set-nettle stinging were observed in Philippine waters, and bathers in northern latitudes, as at New York, have suffered from swelling of the eyes and lips, sores after contact with jellyfish. The same issue of the bulletin cites cases of men who suffered from nasal trouble after bathing through getting water into the nose, attributable, it is believed, to the presence of the bacillus coli communis in the sea water at health resorts. P. A. Surgeon E. B. Trinkle, U. S. N., holds that there is more danger from middle-ear trouble by the taking in of water in bathing than from nasal infection. Army and Navy Journal.

The Taft Hope and Business

There are republicans who concede that as matters stand today their party's prospects are poor. Mr. Roosevelt disturbs these men, and the reception of Mr. Wilson's nomination in democratic circles suggests a large democratic vote.

But it is not conceded that the party is doomed. There is hope though of a slender order, that in the three months that must pass before election day arrives a change will take place.

Some campaigns are cited as war-torn. In 1872 Gen. Grant's Rogues' Gallery Pictures of Men Wanted For Murder of Gambler Rosenthal In New York.

LOUIS MARKS

HARRY HOROWITZ

The New York police department has sent broadcast pictures and descriptions of the men wanted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, a gambler, who was shot shortly before he was to tell to the grand jury a story of alleged partnership between the police and gambling houses. Two of the men are Louis Marks, alias "Lefty Louis," alias Louis Baker, alias Charles Raymond, and Harry Horowitz, alias "Gyp the Blood," alias Levy, alias Jones. Marks is twenty-three, stands five feet eight inches and weighs 145 pounds. He has a snail-like complexion, dark hair and brown eyes. Horowitz is twenty-five years old, weighs 130 to 140 pounds and is five feet four and three-quarter inches in height. He has chestnut black hair, brown eyes and dark complexion. Both are smooth shaven. Both are professional thieves and known as handy men with their guns.

campaign languished for weeks. Mr. Greeley "looked good" in both political and sporting circles as late as September. But then a change set in, and on election day Mr. Greeley was nowhere.

In 1890 Gen. Garfield's defeat seemed certain until Gen. Grant and Mr. Conkling took the field, which was in September. Business circles became alarmed at a greenback victory in Maine, which had been achieved under democratic auspices, and then there was a pull all together for the republican ticket.

In 1896 Mr. Bryan looked formidable at the start, and for some weeks, few so attractive stumpers had ever appeared in our affairs. He was drawing as large crowds as Mr. Blaine had ever done, and Mr. Hanna grew nervous. But the business interests again saved the day.

In 1904, at a late day in the campaign, E. L. Harriman visited the White House and "threw a scare into" Mr. Roosevelt. The railroad magnate convinced the politician that the latter's prospects were poor in New York and only some husky work could save him. It was a false alarm, but it served to show how misleading political appearances sometimes are.

The change hoped and looked for in Mr. Taft's behalf is in business circles, and through them in labor circles. Republican leaders believe that a discussion of the issues and the several platforms bearing on them will convince business men and wage earners that their interests lie with Mr. Taft and that consequently they will support him at the polls in sufficient numbers to give him the election.

This is July. At this time in 1884 the business men of New York had not organized their movement for Mr. Cleveland. At this time in 1896, Mr. McKinley had not altered the sentiment that what the country needed was opening the mills and not the mint—which made so profound an impression on the campaign. And at this time in 1904 Judge Parker's nomination seemed to represent the greatest wisdom the democracy could have displayed.—Washington Star.

EVERYBODY IS SUBSCRIBING.

The unusual offer of the New York Morning World by mail for $1.00 from now until after election (up to Nov. 25) has attracted wide attention. This is an unusual offer, and is made by this great newspaper to largely increase its circulation during this "warmest" campaign since Grant's fought a third term. Remember, the weekday Morning World from now until Nov. 25 by mail for $1.00.

THE NEW SPECIES

To hear his instructions we gather around. His grammar is good and his reason profound.

He tells us just what he desires us to do. To help the campaign which his cohorts pursue.

He is firm and emphatic, but not at all cross. He's a leader astute. But he isn't a boss.

He teaches us what we had better repeat. As political doctrine, in high road or street. He tells us how far it is proper to go in impressing the throng with an opinion show. The black sheep far out from his fold he will toss.

He's a disciplinarian; never a boss.

Some men who have ruled in political strife said "these here" and "them there" and ate pie with a knife. But this new guiding spirit is wholly correct.

As he seeks, with the force of a trained intellect, The maximum gain or the minimum loss. We are glad that he isn't an old-fashioned boss! —Washington Star.

TYPHOID IN PORTO RICO

Seventy Cases and Five Deaths in Three Weeks

San Juan, P. R., July 28.—An epidemic of typhoid fever prevails in the municipality of Penuelas, eight miles from Ponce. Penuelas has a population of about 1200 and seventy cases of typhoid fever with five deaths have occurred in three weeks. New cases are developing daily.

The water supply from the river has been found to be infected. Water from another source is being brought into the town.

A clerk employed by the sanitation board of San Juan has developed a case of plague. He was ill for several days but did not stop work, not suspecting bubonic.

A BOYISH DARE

Louis Dion, Aged 11, Gave Henry Talbot, 12, Permission to Shoot Him

Lawrence, Mass., July 28.—"I gave him permission to shoot me," were words written out by Louis, Dion, aged 11, in a boyish scrawl on a piece of paper, today, and then stood up before Henry Talbot, aged 12, who shot him dead through the heart. The shooting was the result of a boy's dare in his new .22-calibre rifle and a dare from a companion who "didn't believe it could kill anything."

The rifle belonged to the Talbot boy who, with Henry White, aged 11, was shooting with it from the window of the Talbot boy's home. Young Dion came along and remarked his brother had a similar rifle and it was no good.

HORSE BOLTED

Tomstones Knocked Down, Hearses Overturned at Erie, Pa.

Erie, Pa., July 28.—Lives were endangered today in the Erie cemetery when horses attached to a hearse conveying the body of Otto Moryn Fin amuck and were not stopped until they had overturned the hearse, knocked down tombstones, injured several of the mourners and dumped out the casket containing the body.

As the horses struck a large headstone the hearse overturned and the casket fell on the grass. The jar did not loosen the coffin lid and the funeral services were brought to a conclusion.

REFUSES TO SUPPORT ROOSEVELT

Vermont Progressive Objects to Making Roosevelt Support Party
Test.

BETHEL, Vt., July 28.—Wallace Batchelder one of the leading and most active Progressives of Vermont Rough Rider, and warm personal friend of Col. Theodore Roosevelt has announced that he cannot no longer support Roosevelt for president.

The break came when he received a telegram from Col. Roosevelt confirming the authenticity of a former telegram to the effect that the Col.
wished no candidates endorsed who would not support Roosevelt electors.

Mr. Batchelder in his fight against bossism in Vermont had been advocating the endorsement by the Progressives of the Democratic candidate for Governor, H. B. Howe. Upon Col. Roosevelt's confirming the authenticity of his first telegram Mr.
Batchelder sent him a telegram yesterday expressing deep grief at the shattering of the ideal and announcing the ex-President as his political leader. The telegram follows:

"Your telegram received. I am shocked.

"For more than four months, I who am a poor man, with a wife and two little boys to support have worked literally night and day without fear, favor or hope of reward, for the progressive cause and have believed that you were that cause personified.

I have neglected my business, earned no money, and am many dollars poorer than I was that evening last March when I dined with you at Oyster Day, after being summoned
there by you."

I supposed that I was fighting for the real rule of the people and against bosses and bossism. Your telegram received this morning stating that the telegram of July 20, purporting to be signed by you, is substantially authentic, makes it plain that you direct me, and men in every state, that we must not vote for any candidate for any office, no matter how honest, able efficient or progressive he may be, unless that candidate will agree to pay for our votes by supporting Theodore Roosevelt for President of the United States again or supporting Roosevelt electors.

"I was a member of your regiment in 1898. For 14 years I have felt more affection for you than for any other person on earth except the members of my immediate family.

It is a terrible wrench Col. but I cannot fool myself and I must be straightforward and frank with you as you know I always have been.

"With grief the death of which you cannot know, I have decided after one of the hardest fights I have ever been forced to put up, that I cannot longer support you for the President of the United States.
Wallace Batchelder.

EX-GOV. BACHELDER LATEST CANDIDATE

New Hampshire College Presidency to Be Decided This Week.

DURHAM, N. H., July 28. Among the names discussed in New Hampshire State College and alumni circles as a desirable successor to President William D. Gibbs, resigned, one that has not been mentioned as that of Ex-Gov. Nathaniel J. Bachelder.

There is a strong feeling manifested that what the college needs is an administrator of good and recognized ability to direct the affairs of the fast-growing institution. The trustees are looking for such a man. Several names have already been suggested and their strong points discussed. Among them that of Henry C. Morrison, state superintendent of public instruction, appears to be the most favored, especially by the alumni.

Gov. Bachelder is a member of the board of trustees. This naturally renders the suggestion of him as a possible candidate for the place the board must fill a delicate matter. The fact remains, however, that in private discussions by those deeply interested in the welfare of the college concerning the best man available for the place his name has been spoken of with enthusiasm.

The belief is expressed that Gov. Bachelder, with his broad experience, his eminent success as an agriculturist and as an administrator in the president's office, would accomplish needed reforms in administrative policy and would soon bring the college up to the level of the best managed agricultural and mechanical colleges of the United States.

It is not known whether Gov. Bachelder would accept the college presidency. If tendered him; but those who favor him for office believe that the trustees would not only make no mistake, but do the best thing for the college in picking him from among their number for the existing vacancy. The action of the board at the meeting July 31, called to consider the presidency, is awaited with keen interest all over the State.

NEWINGTON.

Mrs. Brown, who has recently been visiting Mrs. William Farber, has now returned home.

Miss Sadie Pace was a visitor in Dover on Friday.

Mrs. Frederick Pickering is entertaining her sister for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winn are enjoying the company of their niece and nephew from Greenland.

Mr. Richard Goss and wife were the guests of Mr. Albert and Miss Hattie Pickering one day this week.

Miss Viola Hoyt, who has been passing a few weeks with her sister in Everett, Mass., has now returned home.

Some of the farmers have finished haying this week, while others will not do so for another week.

Mr. Clarence de Rochemont has finished oiling the state road this past week.

Blueberries are not as plentiful as last year, but the bushes are surrounded by many eager pickers who feel that they cannot do without their berry biscuits and pies.

Mrs. Baby Allard, who has been "quitting" of late and able to go about out of doors, suffered an ill turn last week. It is hoped that she will soon recover from the effects of it.

Mrs. Frederick Pickering and two sons, Alfred and Frederick, Mr. Hicene and his guests spent a day at Hampton Beach this past week.

Charles F. Tucker and family passed Sunday with Dr. S. F. A. Pickering at the latter's summer home at Little Bear's Head.

WHERE LIFE IS VERY CHEAP

Danger of Getting In Front of the Guns During Russian War Maneuvers.

Forty-two soldiers were shot during the recent maneuvers of the Russian army. The announcement is stolidly made by the minister of war. He adds, "These men were in advance of the guns."

As guns do not ordinarily shoot backward, the minister's cryptic explanation may be considered superfluous. The incident is, perhaps, interesting chiefly because of the light it throws on Russia's official attitude toward the value of human life. It fits in aptly with the reports of executions, imprisonments and exiles which, coming from all parts of the czar's domains, keep the world informed of the progress of heartless oppression.

It is not surprising that the empire is rocked with discontent, that observers believe the government faces another costly revolution. A nation cannot place so low a value on the lives of its subjects without ultimately reaping its reward in blood and terror.

Accidents in military maneuvers are not uncommon. They have occurred in the United States, and, doubtless, will continue to occur from time to time as long as military training is held a necessary part of every nation's list of obligations. It has remained for Russia, however, to send soldiers "in advance of the guns" to be shot, and for a minister of the czar's government to announce the blunder to the world with as much unconcern, apparently, as he might announce the departure of a detachment for patrol duty on the Persian frontier.

VISIT WAS MOST OPPORTUNE

Artist Calls to Exhibit Work at Moment When Its Desirability Was Being Discussed.

Some years ago a publishing house was preparing to issue a new edition of the writings of Thoreau, writes Charles S. Olcott in Art and Progress. The head of the house and a member of his staff were in consultation about the method of illustration. It was agreed that the pictures must be true to nature; but how to get them was the problem. Artists who do book illustrating could not be expected to go into the woods and make pictures which would in any way assist the text to reveal nature as Thoreau saw it. Photographs would be admirable, but where was the professional photographer to be found who would undertake to go into Thoreau's country in sunshine and rain, in summer and winter, to catch all the phases of nature which Thoreau recorded in his "Journal"? While the two men pondered, a caller sat in the outer office with a large portfolio under his arm. Five years before he had read Thoreau's "Journal," and had taken up his residence in Concord that he might visit the scenes there described. In all seasons and all kinds of weather he had wandered through the woods and over the fields with his camera; passionately fond of nature, he was no less devoted to art. To him, photography was a pastime—it was not his profession. For the pure love of nature and of art, and with no thought of pecuniary gain, he had accomplished the very feat which the two business men had thought so difficult, and by a curious coincidence he appeared at the office to exhibit the result of his work at the precise moment when its desirability was being discussed.

Church Music.

Music has long been notoriously a provoker of discord. Once in my news-hunting days I suffered the ignominy of a scolding on a choir rumormongering. I thereupon formed the habit of lending an anxious ear to rumors of trouble in choir lofts. The average ladder-like Tenor, built up for the display of the soprano's vocal prowess, has always struck me as an unholy thing. I even believe that the horrors of highly embellished offertories have done much to tighten pursestrings and deaden generous impulses. The presence behind the pulpit of a languid quartette praising God on behalf of the bored sinners in the pews has always seemed to me the profanest of anomalies. [Nor has long contemplation of vested choirs in Episcopal churches shaken my belief that choir music should be an affair of the congregation.—Meredith Nicholson, in the Atlantic.]

Habit That Pleased.

"So you have thought it over carefully and decided that young Money-blower is the man you must marry," said her father gravely.

"Yes, father," the young woman replied.

"Are you sure that his habits are such as will make for a happy married life?"

"Yes, indeed. He buys a new motor car every year, and that's just the sort of habit I want my husband to have."

Believes in Work.

Anne Morgan, daughter of the financier, who does much work among poor girls and others who earn considerable money through their own efforts, advises the girls constantly to save something. Her advice to them always is: "In times of prosperity, prepare for adversity." Miss Morgan, in fact, is a firm believer that every wealthy girl should be equipped to earn her own living should anything occur to take her fortune away.

ESAUS IN NOBILITY

German Scions Who Sell Their Birthright.

Are Known as "Name Marriages"—One Sold for Ten Marks, a Second—Hand Suit of Clothes and a Supper.

Berlin.—Berlin society is again agitated over the question of "name marriages," a subject which has long been a painful one in the annals of many noble families, making an unpleasant chapter in the history of German morals.

Name marriages have recently become of frequent occurrence owing to the ever increasing large number of scapagoat scions of noble houses who are quite willing to become modern Esaus, selling their birthright for the modern equivalent of a mess of pottage to any ambitious plebeian "Schultz," "Muller," "Meyer," etc., who offers, not himself, indeed, but a certain stipulated sum of money.

The case of a well known Berlin demimondaine, Countess Frieda von Strachwitz, in her more respectable days employed a masseuse, and who was murdered about three years ago, was a notable instance of name marriage. She became a countess at the cheapest price on record. Her worthless husband sold himself, together with his name, a crest and a blue-pointed grafsen crown, to the masseuse for ten marks in gold, a second-hand suit of clothes and a hot supper.

On the other hand some fair prices are on record. A recent name marriage contracted between a well-to-do Berlin parvenue and a member of an ancient Brandenburg and Pomeranian family distinguished in war and peace, cost (according to the Neue Gesellschaftliche correspondence) the parvenue wife 10,000 marks, conditioned, of course, on the titled husband disappearing immediately after the wedding and allowing the wife to sue for divorce on the ground of desertion.

Name marriages are purely and simply a business affair.

SUPPOSED DEAD MAN REVIVES

Veterinary Surgeon Signs Certificate, and "Deceased" Registers Protest.

Vienna.—A wealthy landowner named Masny had a narrow escape from being buried alive, at Zuravica, in Galicia. He had fallen in a fit, and as there is no doctor in the neighborhood, a veterinary surgeon was called in, who pronounced him dead, and gave a certificate of death from apoplexy.

A large number of his relatives were present at the funeral, and, in accordance with the local custom, after the coffin had been lowered into the grave and the final blessing given by the priest, they began themselves to shovel in the first spadefuls of earth.

This apparently roused the supposed dead man from his trance, for faint cries for help were heard from the coffin. Most of the bystanders ran away in a panic, but the more sensible immediately helped the priest to open the coffin. Masny was quite conscious, and, after he had been given a restorative and been helped out of the coffin, was able to walk home with a borrowed overcoat over his grave clothes.

MAGAZINES SAVE HIS LIFE

Bundle on His Back Protects a Man When Tossed by a Train at Jamesburg, N. J.

Jamesburg, N. J.—Crossing the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at night, Robert Cross of Georgia, who is visiting here, failed to hear an approaching train and walked directly in front of the locomotive.

Spectators gasped as they saw him leap just as a cylinder struck a bag of magazines he was carrying on his back, and the man, hurled to the side of the track, was spun around like a top until he dropped in a dizzy faint beside the rails, his head within six inches of the wheels.

He was taken to the home of friends and revived and the physicians found that, aside from a few minor bruises, he was unhurt.

DOWNY CHICK GETS CREDIT

Hen Career Started at Two Weeks Old, Says Poultryman—Egg Is Tiny Affair.

Woodland, Wash.—Carl Johnson, who operates a poultry yard here, is exhibiting a plate of blue eggs, six of which are full-sized and were laid by one-year-old pullets, two are about one-third size and were laid by chicks March 23, 1912, and the ninth egg is a tiny affair that was laid by a chick that had been out of the incubator only two weeks. Mr. Johnson stakes his reputation for veracity on this story. The chickens are white Leghorns.

Divorcee Pays to Wed Italian. Baltimore.—Mrs. Hulda Justice Steel, divorced wife of a prominent citizen, is about to become the bride of Alberto Tullio, of Rome, a member of an old Italian family. Following the ceremony, Mrs. Steel agrees to disavow her life for $50,000, payable to the bridegroom, and also agrees to give him an allowance of $1,600 for life. Mrs. Steel is worth a million.

GREAT FALLS IN TASMANIA

Water Power That Will Develop Electricity for Use of Manufacturers on Island.

A big hydro-electric engineering scheme now being constructed in the middle of Tasmania will revolutionize the industrial life of that island. The area of Tasmania is a little over 26,000 square miles, and its present population is 191,000. Situated in the middle of the island at an altitude of 3,400 feet is the Great Lake, a storage reservoir provided by nature herself. The area of this sheet of water is forty-one of Tasmania's square miles. The outlet of this lake is the River

Tasmanian Niagara.

Shannon. At this outlet a new company, which has recently been formed, is constructing a weir to regulate the flow. The water will then be diverted from the Shannon into a lagoon, from which steel pipes will be laid so as to create an effective fall of water for over 1,000 feet vertical.

Nature's disposition in this region allows of the mechanical contrivance of engineers in this manner both simply and cheaply. It is calculated that in the power house to be erected at the foot of this fall electricity of the value of $5,000 horse power can be generated all the year round, sufficient to work the developing industries of the whole island.

Hobart (the capital) in the south and Launceston in the north will be supplied from it, and there will be ample power to work the important mineral fields of the west coast as well as the copper mines of Mount Lyell, the tin mines of Bischoff, and the silver mines of Zeehan.

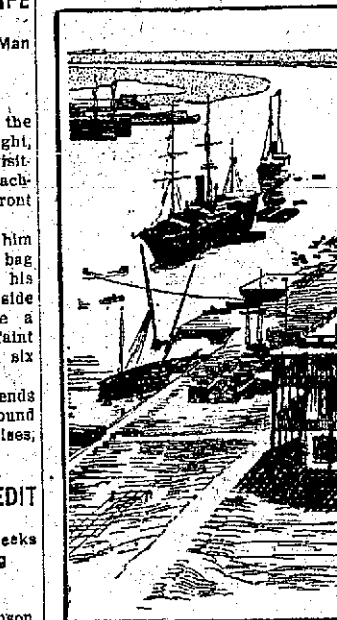

OCEAN MOVED NEAR CITY

By Means of a Ship Canal Forty Miles Long Manchester Is Now Called a Port.

London.—Though it is eighteen years ago since the Manchester ship canal was inaugurated, few people beyond the radius of Lancashire realize the importance of this great inland waterway, that carries ocean-going ships into the heart of one of our largest cities.

The ship canal is a trifle more than 35 miles in length, and has a depth of 26 feet, while it is 200 feet in width, or as wide as the Suez. In places the canal is 60 feet above sea level, and it cost considerably more than $75,000,000 to build.

In cities like Bristol, Ipswich or Chatham, approached as they are by tial waterways, one expects to find ships, but hardly in a city more than 40 miles from the open sea.

The biggest canal in existence is that connecting Peking and Canton in China, 1,000 miles in length. The Suez canal is 99 miles long, the Caldonian 60 miles, and in Great Britain and Ireland the inland waterways total no fewer than 3,907 miles, more than 6,000 of which are in England.

Burglar Kills Denver Man. Denver, Colo.—J. S. Johnson, president of the Johnson Drug company, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded by a masked highwayman, who first forced him to open the cash register. The shooting was precipitated by the entrance of a woman into the store.

A SPANISH FIESTA

To Be Given By Local Talent In August.

A Spanish Fiesta is to be given under the auspices of the Spanish Language League on August 7th. It is now under preparation and promises to be a novel and unique affair. It will be held on the beautiful grounds of the Kimball residence South Road, which will be especially decorated and illuminated for the occasion. All those taking part will appear in Spanish costume and there will be many interesting features introduced, to make the fiesta a success. A Gitanos will tell fortunes in her tent, there will be several tables at which refreshments will be served, and where one may sit and listen to delightful music, and last but not least see an unusual and excellent vaudeville performance given by some of our best amateurs. The programme includes Spanish dances, songs and the wonderful oriental pantomime Zamparrano written by Miss Mary Telfinger and given under her direction. The fiesta will be open both afternoon and evening. A complete programme of the vaudeville entertainment will appear later.

THE RYE ROADS DANGEROUS

The Rye roads, especially those near Portsmouth, are a disgrace to that town. A few dollars expended in gravel and a man with a pickaxe could work wonders. The selectmen could also do something that would make the Wentworth House road safe.

LEGEND OF MONUMENT

HOW THE TALL MARBLE SHAFT IS GAINING HISTORY.

Something Happening About It Every Year to Draw Attention—Instances of Anecdotes Piling Up as Adjuncts to Its History.

When Thomas S. Purcell, the builder of the Washington monument, a 555-foot obelisk, which dominates the buildings at the capital, died a few days ago, the reminiscences which cling about the marble shaft were recalled to mind. Purcell was eighty-eight years old and had spent the greater part of his life in superintending the building of stone edifices.

Every year or two the monument does something to draw attention to it. For instance, a freak story was circulated about the shaft a year ago to the effect that its material was rotting. This libel gained the most extensive credence. Stories were printed by practically every newspaper in the country and photographs of decaying blocks were shown. It was claimed by some geologist that the poor quality of material with which the walls of the monument are filled was going to bring about the destruction of the building. He claimed that this filler was rotting and causing the decay of the outer walls. He went so far as to point out the decayed places. There was a vast deal of newspaper talk about the matter, but after a while the story was forgotten, laid on the shelf with all the other freak tales. The monument still stands.

Then when Charlie Street, a baseball player, wanted to prove how clever he was on catching the emblem of his profession he picked out the Washington monument as the proper structure to immortalize his achievement. Street sent a confederate to the top of the monument and had him toss a baseball out one of the windows 500 feet in the air. He caught the ball and the old monument again enjoyed a short season of publicity.

At a still remoter period somebody chose the Washington monument as the only proper medium to test the truth of the saying that a cat has nine lives. A feline in the prime of life was selected for the test, taken to the top of the shaft and dropped from one of the windows. The cat followed the lines of the structure all the way to the ground. On alighting it got to its feet, walked a few steps and laid down and expired. Its back was broken.

These are instances of what sort of anecdote the Washington monument is piling up as adjuncts to the story of its life, and there are older stories which are nearly ancient enough to be labeled legends.

The obelisk itself was built in two sections. A historical society built the first part and then ran out of funds. Work stopped for a long time, and then the government appropriated money for the completion of the shaft. From the inside may be seen blocks of all shapes and sizes bearing inscriptions in all languages, the gifts of foreign nations, organizations and individuals.

One of these, about which clings an interesting tale, was donated by the pope of Rome and later lost. This was a tremendous block weighing a ton or more which was to have been inserted in a very prominent place. The stone was posed there for some time. What became of it is a mystery. The pope sent no other block.

Statesmen Swap Clothes.

Representative Timothy Ansberry, a Democratic member from Ohio, appeared on the floor of the house to day wearing the "loudest" suit of clothes ever seen in the halls of congress. It had as many colors as Joseph's coat, and the checks and stripes added to its festive appearance.

"Where did you get it?" asked Representative William Hughes, another Democrat of New Jersey.

"In Belgium, last summer," replied Mr. Ansberry.

"I'll trade you. I'm going to the races," said Mr. Hughes.

"Come on," said the Ohioan.

A few minutes later they emerged from a nearby committee room. Mr. Hughes arrayed in many colors and Mr. Ansberry in the sombre gray that had adorned the form of the New Jersey member.

Mr. Hughes led his colleague away for the Pinlicko race track.

Another Bachelor on List.

Lieutenant Colonel Yarde-Bulley, recently appointed to succeed Colonel McLachlan as military attaché of the British embassy, will be another bachelor added to the list of eligibles in the corps, now headed by his colleague, Captain Sowerby, naval attaché. Another change to be made in the diplomatic circle in Washington is the promotion of Masano Hanthara of the Japanese embassy staff, who has recently been appointed to an important post in the Japanese foreign office, after having served his government as third, second and first secretary, consecutively, and often in the absence of the ambassador, as chargé d'affaires at Washington.

CANNOT ENDURE THE PIANO

Chinese Servant Gives Notice When Employer's Daughter Gets Old Enough to Practice.

The fascination of an untrammelled life in New York had lured other Chinese servants away from western families who had migrated with their relatives to New York, but John of the banker's family had remained faithful through two years of metropolitan temptations.

At last he gave notice and refused to tell why. Finally the manager of an employment agency offered a solution of John's defection.

"It is because your little girl has got big enough to practice on the piano," he said. "John can't stand that."

"A Chinaman hates a piano. It takes a good deal to upset Chinese nerves, but a piano is capable of completing the job most effectually. Hereafter there has been but little piano playing in your house; now that there is a prospect of several hours of practice every day John clears out."

"We have that trouble with many Chinese servants. There are plenty of western families in New York who would like Chinese help, but as soon as an otherwise willing servant learns that there is a piano in the house he declines the job."

FOR DISINFECTION OF BOOKS

Apparatus Devised by a Frenchman Removes Danger of Contagion and Doesn't Damage Paper.

The danger from contagion from books that have been in the hands of persons suffering from various diseases has led to the invention of various methods of disinfection, of which none appears to be more effective than an apparatus devised by Marseoulan of Paris.

His process embraces two parts. In the first place, the books are placed in a "bather" where a strong current of air opens every leaf and an aspirator sucks out the dust and deposits it in a separator; then they are suspended in a disinfectant, the covers being bent back and held by clips so that the leaves are widely opened and placed over a heater which for a time subjects them to a temperature of 167 degrees Fahrenheit.

The paper is not damaged, and the efficiency of the process is said to have been demonstrated beyond question.—Harper's Weekly.

Insatiable Way of Providence.

With reference to the final extinction of the latter day successor of the Delmonico restaurant, it is related that two Germans, fresh from Chicago, once visited New York, and one well acquainted with the city invited his friend to dine at Delmonico's, where a dinner for two and a bottle of wine were ordered. The place and fare were praised until the bill of $11 was presented. This they considered an extortion.

They paid, however, and while walking down Broadway the excited German commenced to swear at the supposed extortion. His friend then said:

"Do not swear, Yawcow. It is wicked to swear. God has punished that man Delmonico."

"How?"

"I haf mine pocket full mit spoons."

The intruder.

A certain boat coming up the Mississippi one day during the flood lost her way and bumped up against a frame house. She hadn't more than touched it before an old darkey rammed his head up through a hole in the roof, where the chimney once came out, and yelled at the captain on the roof: "Whar's yer gwine wid dat boat? Can't you see nothin? Fust thing yer knows yer gwine to turn dis house ober, spill de old woman an' de child'en on 'em, de flood 'em down 'em. What yer doin' out here in de country wid yer boat, anyhow?"

On back yander froo de co'n fields an' get back into de ribber whar ya b'longs. Ain't got no business sevin' miles out in de country foolin' roppin' people's houses, nohow?" And she backed out.—Life.

Hints to Lovelorn Gents.

"If she makes a practice of eating onions for supper every time you call, it is a sign that she is indifferent toward your suit."

If you spend a lot of money sending flowers to her every day it may make a hit with her, but she will marry somebody who has more sense.

Don't talk to her about love in a cottage. Talk about a brownstone bungalow and spring the cottage on her after you get her.

If she is handsome, tell her about it, and if she isn't, tell her anyway.

Have an automobile catalogue in your coat pocket where she can catch a glimpse of it.

Fashion a Shy Bird.

Fashion is a shy bird, and an observant critic has noticed that tailors are not advising the frock coat and fancy waistcoat, which are becoming unpopular because Mr. Seddon was so dressed in the dock. The passing of the frock coat will be welcomed by many, and by many who do not remember the execution of Mrs. Manning in 1849, who swung in black satin, and made that material unfashionable for many years. There is an opening for reformers who wish to change the fashions and are willing to go to the stake for their belief. One can foresee a woman who will commit a murder in order to be hanged in a hobble skirt, so that there shall be no more hobble skirts in the fashionable world. And the enthusiastic vegetarian might kill some other donkey and die in leather boots, with the idea of bringing vegetable boots into fashion. There are many possibilities for the reformers who will consent to wear the wrong clothes on the right occasion.—London Chronicle.

World That Was New to Her.

Tommy Conovan, a property man in Cleveland, possesses among his personal "props" a number of amusing stories. This is one of them:

"I used to be on the door at the Lyceum. One night when Joseph Murphy was playing there an old Irish lady approached with a ticket in her hand. Evidently she had never been in a playhouse before and was somewhat bewildered. She watched the line passing by me and listened as I called out 'upstairs' or 'downstairs' according to the tickets handed me. Finally she slowly approached and gave me her coupon."

"Upstairs," she said, as she leaned toward me, "can you tell me on what floor I can see Joseph Murphy?"

Barnum's Public.

P. T. Barnum's tent manager came to him one day and complained that he could not move the crowds from the big tent after the show.

Barnum considered a moment.

"Get Sam to stand near the door and yell out 'This way to the egress!'"

He advised with twinkling eyes.

Short Stories.

Her Vicarious Babies.

A young New York woman just past girlhood, who has an ample income, wished to assume the guardianship of some child without taking it into her own home, which, under the circumstances, was impossible. After some looking about the association bickering a struggling mother who was so very poor that she had practically made up her mind to yield to an institution her two children, a girl and a boy. These children, who were very promising, were shown to the fairy godmother, who undertook to pay for their support and education.

By this miraculous means the mother is able to keep her children with her and they themselves, now that they are properly cared for and encouraged, are blossoming into unexpected charms.—Harper's Bazar.

FREAKS OF LIGHTNING

SOME PHENOMENA OF THE ELECTRIC CURRENT EXPLAINED.

Wooden Roofs Are Struck Oftener Than Those of Metal, Slate or Other Materials, Declares a Fire Warden.

There is not as much danger from buildings being struck by lightning as most people suppose. Last year of 1888 buildings being struck by lightning a great number were burned.

Of these buildings 958 had wooden roofs, 34 were metal, 39 were slate and 816 were not described.

Of this whole number only 40 were rodded, 855 were not, and 952 were not reported.

In the ten years, 1893 to 1903, German investigators found that of all buildings struck, 9 per cent of those having hard roofs and 88 per cent of those having soft roofs were not set on fire.

Older writers say that risks of buildings being struck by lightning is five times greater in the country than in the city. Electricity is present in the earth and in the atmosphere at all times. The amount in the atmosphere varies from time to time, but becomes large during so-called magnetic storms. These storms are usually accompanied by auroral displays and are often coincident with sunspots.

It has been found that there is an excess of negative electricity in the surface of the earth and an excess of positive electricity in the atmosphere.

As like electricity repels and unlike electricity attracts, it follows that there is a constant interchange or movement of the positive electricity in the air toward the earth and of the negative electricity in the earth toward and into the atmosphere.

At times this is so marked that there is a visible discharge from objects extending into atmosphere, like masts on vessels, or from the bodies of persons standing on mountain tops, just as there is sometimes between the finger and a rapidly moving belt.

This brush-like discharge is called "St. Elmo's fire." One man went out on the summit of Pike's Peak with a raised umbrella during a magnetic storm and when he came in said it was raining lead.

Thunderstorms will be generated wherever there is a rapidly rising current of very moist air. Why and how we do not know. We do know, however, that moisture is condensed from water vapor upon minute particles of dust and upon electric ions. We know also that each drop of water, large or ever so minute, has a coating of electricity upon its surface.

Whenever the stress of electricity in the air, due to the electrification of the cloud mass, passes the breaking limit, the air gives way. It is cracked from cloud to earth like a piece of glass as the bolt descends.

It is held by most scientists that sometimes at least the lightning flash is an oscillatory discharge, and that the electricity passes both up and down.

The distance of a flash is approximately as many miles as one-fifth the number of seconds between the flash and the thunder.

Contractor's Wise Rule.

Among a crowd that gazed skyward at the construction of the Woolworth building at Broadway, Barclay street and Park place, the iron frame of which now reaches about forty stories was an individual with a broad brogue, relates the New York Tribune. There was no mistake about the country whence he came, and it was evident that he had not been here long. With eyes bulging, hands behind his back and mouth open, he stood watching the human files as they moved about feasting on the work that was being done at such a dizzy height. He finally turned to the man at his side and touched him on the shoulder. "Say," he remarked, "that sure must be dangerous work. But tell me, do many of those fellows fall off?" "Very few," came the reply from the bystander. "And how is that?" asked the Irishman. "Well," the other replied, "the contractor makes it a rule that he will not hire again a man that once falls from above that story."

Wrong License.

In some states of America the mayor of a town generally combines with in his own person the functions of postmaster, coroner, inspector of nuisances, registrar of births, deaths and marriages, and so on.

One day a young couple approached the much-harassed official and intimated their desire to get married.

"Guess that'll cost a dollar," said the mayor, and there and then the deed was done.

Late that night, as they were about to embark on the sleeper for New York, a little bullet-headed urbin rushed up to them in a great state of excitement.

"Say, you two," he yelled, "I guess you'd better hold on a bit. Pa's made a mistake; you've got a dog license!"

The Bargain Counter.

Herbert Sleath Cameron, the western advertising expert, said at an advertisers' dinner in Chicago:

"It is better to give than to receive. This is especially true of bargains."

"Bargains are superb things, but let us always remember that the people who offer bargains get rich quicker than those who take advantage of the same."

OSEQUIES

The funeral of Mrs. S. Elizabeth Fernald was held at the home of her son, C. F. Drake, in Eliot, on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Fernald was born in Hampton, N. H., May 28, 1848. She was the daughter of Deacon David and Mary Batchelder Elkins. In early life Mrs.
Fernald was teacher and won the respect and affection of her pupils by her cheerful personality and firm though loving discipline. On November 5th 1869, she was married to Fabyan P. Drake of Hampton. They resided in So. Boston until Mr.
Drake's health failed in 1884, when they moved to Kittery where he died after months of suffering which were lightened as far as possible by the tender devotion of his wife.

In 1893 Mrs. Drake became the wife of William A. Fernald, of Kittery, with whom she lived very happily for five years. While residing in Kittery Mrs. Fernald was a consistent and zealous member of the First M. E. church. She was especially active in Sunday school work, being teacher of the infant class for several years. In 1903 Mrs. Fernald made a new home in Eliot near her son. She joined the Congregational church there and also became connected with the W. C. T. U. of which she was the official president for several years. Her influence in that work will long be felt. She was also an earnest member and worker in the John F. Hill Grange, also ready to do everything in her power to further its interests. She served as chaplain three years and later as lecturer; after she was unable to attend the meetings she planned the programs in her home.

Mrs. Fernald was a woman of strong character and large executive ability. Whatever she undertook was carried to a successful end. Her friends were always sure that nothing would turn her from her purpose.
She leaves two sons, Charles E.
Drake of Eliot, and Everett W. Drake of Belmont, Mass., and three grandchildren also three step children.
Dr. Walter E. Fernald, of Waverly,
Mass., W. Linwood Fernald, of Eliot, and Mrs. William M. Sanborn of Sanbornville, N. H. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Elmer Leslie of Kittery; the burial service of the Grange being used at the close. The burial was in North Hampton beside the husband of her young.

THIEVES MAKE
TWO BREAKSResidences of H. P. Montgomery and John W. Kelley Entered but Little of Value Taken.

Shortly after one o'clock this morning, officer Schrider passing along Middle street saw a man hiding behind a pole near the residence of J. P. Montgomery, on the corner of Labot and Middle streets. He started to approach the man when he crossed the lawn and jumped several times in the rear of the Montgomery residence. The officer gave chase not knowing at the time just what had happened. He lost his man in the chase and returned to the house to find that it had been entered.
Later officers McCaffery, West and Ducker joined in the hunt for the man and discovered that the residence of John W. Kelley had also been visited by crooks. At both places the thieves pried open windows with a large piece of sharp iron used on the brake shoe of car-brakes. Two of these the thief dropped when chased by the officer. The families are away and it was an easy matter for the crooks to work without being detected. An examination was made today of the houses, and though the several rooms were ransacked not much of any value is thought to have been taken.

Minimum Wages for Yard Men

A tentative agreement to report favorably the Buchanan bill, which affects navy yard employees throughout the country, was reached on Saturday at a meeting of the sub-committee of the House naval affairs committee. The bill would fix a minimum wage, increasing the present scale. Under this measure machinists would be divided into four classes, the minimum wage per hour
